RE: Sharp Family Vineyards, LLC (Regulatory Docket No. FAA-2022-0360)

Dear Ms. Neubecker:

This letter is to inform you that the FAA, as part of its exemption disposition analysis for your petition dated March 9, 2022, has reviewed the information contained in your petition and supporting documentation. In the disposition of relief, which will be posted to Regulatory Docket No. FAA-2022-0360 (<http://www.regulations.gov>), the FAA intends to summarize the information it relied on in making its determination. This may include information you have marked as proprietary and confidential. Additionally, you marked the petition and supporting documents as proprietary and confidential, as well as copyrighted. Because the information contained in these documents is publicly available, the FAA has determined that this information should be available for public inspection on <http://www.regulations.gov>.

The FAA treats the disclosure of information via the exemption process under 14 CFR Part 11 similar to release of information under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). Therefore, if the FAA believes that, the information is necessary to the exemption analysis or is already publicly available; the information will be summarized and disclosed within the body of the exemption unless it is exempt from mandatory release under the FOIA. To be withheld under FOIA, the information must be covered by a statutory exemption set forth in 5 U.S.C. § 552(b), of which exemption (b)(4) may be applicable. This exemption covers “trade secrets and commercial or financial information obtained from a person that is privileged or confidential.”

We ask that, if you disagree with our determination to release the petition and supporting documents, you provide the FAA with a written objection, accompanied by a written justification as to why you believe it is appropriate to withhold the information (i.e., why the information meets the criteria for withholding under FOIA exemption 4).

If the FAA receives timely objections, we will carefully consider the justification you provide us and will endeavor to protect any trade secret, commercial, or financial information to the extent permitted under law. Should we disagree with your position regarding some or all of the information requested, and determine it to be releasable, we will provide you with advance notice of our decision to make the information available for public inspection on <http://www.regulations.gov>.

Please respond to this notice with any objections by April 15, 2022 via email to Sean O'Tormey (sean.p.o'tormey@faa.gov) and Dan Ngo (dan.a.ngo@faa.gov). If your response is received by the specified date, your objections will be given due consideration before we make a decision. If we have not heard from you by the above date, we will assume that you have no objection to disclosure of the information requested.

Sincerely,
